Cancer Insurance: why is it so important?

When cancer affects your family, Cancer Insurance¹ may support your needs when it matters most.

Experts recommend that families have 3–6 months of living expenses set aside to help in an emergency.² Many people aren't prepared to handle extra costs, so having financial support when the time comes may mean less worry for you and your family.

Even if you have medical and disability insurance, you still may have expenses not covered by insurance. Disability income may only replace a portion of your pre-disability income, and medical insurance can possibly leave you with some extra expenses, such as deductibles, co-pays, or extra costs for out-of-network care or for alternative treatments. Following a verified cancer diagnosis,¹ your first priority should be getting better — not worrying about lost income or everyday living expenses. Cancer Insurance can help pay for anything you may need, such as:

- Mortgage or rent payments
- Utilities
- Car payments
- Credit card bills or other debts
- Groceries
- Childcare expenses

How it works

Cancer Insurance is coverage that can help pay for expenses. Upon an initial verified cancer diagnosis or a recurrence³ of cancer, you'll receive a lump-sum payment to spend as you see fit. The extra cash can help you focus on getting back on track, without worrying about how to pay for the costs of treatment.

And best of all, the payment is made directly to you, regardless of any other insurance you may have. It's yours to spend however you like, including for everyday living expenses for you or your family.

While you can't always prevent cancer, Cancer Insurance is there to help make life a little easier.
